JANUARY COURT COMES TO CLOSE

Three Bittering Cases are Concluded.
One is Continued. Several Divorce Cases are Given Attention in Court.
Final Cases for this Term.

A verdict of $2931 was rendered by the jury in favor of the plaintiff in the suit tried in Adams County Court between C. W. Hendley & Co., of Baltimore, and John R. Bittering, trading as the Bittering Lime Company.

The suit was brought to recover the price of coal sold and delivered by the plaintiff firm to the Bittering Lime Co., and the defense was that John R.
Bittering was not the owner of said Lime Company at the time the goods were sold and delivered.

The action brought by Victor Cushwa & Sons, of Williamsport, Md., against the said defendant, was settled for the full amount of the claim which is said to be $700, and the case of Philip Carey Co. against the same defendant was continued until the April term of Court.

Earlier in the week a jury found for the Percy Heilner Company in the sum of $691 against Mr. Bittering.

in Substantial Gifts of Waynesboro People.

The friends of William R. Daywalt, formerly of Fairfield, the Waynesboro murdered policeman have been quick family and well onto $1500 has been secured in two days' time.

Five hundred and fifty-seven dollars were given at the Biederwolf meeting in Waynesboro Wednesday night for the family of Policeman Daywalt. The Waynesboro Record has received over $250 in another fund, which that paper is raising. The family consists of the widow and five sons, the oldest 12 years.

The town council of Waynesboro voted to give the family Mr. Daywalt's entire salary for the remaining eleven months of the year, $25 to be paid monthly for their support and $30 to be used in part payment of a home for the family or as part of a go to the family, or which is to be conserved for the children of the de-

The public subscription list contains gifts ranging from fifty cents to $100.
A collection of $228.40 was taken at the Biederwolf meeting for the relief

PROBERS VISIT INDIAN SCHOOL

Come into Carlisle Suddenly and Without Advising Superintendent.
Hearings are Held Privately by Investigating Committee.

A committee acting under a joint resolution of the National Senate and House dropped unexpectedly into Carlisle last evening, and, without notifying Superintendent Friedman, of the Carlisle Indian School, of their presence, pre-empted quarters, and, together with J. Linnea, a Government Indian Office inspector, who has been in Carlisle for some days, conducted what is reported to be an investigation of the Indian School and its management.

This report is given strength by the fact that it is known that a number of persons recognized as unfriendly to Friedman and the school, either or both, were heard.

The commission consisted of Senators Robinson and Lane and Representatives Carter and Stevens. Newspaper men were refused admission by the secretary of the commission, R. B.
Keating.

Congressman Arthur R. Rupley, who met the commission at Carlisle, and who has recently denied making charges concerning the Indian school, said that the meeting was public, although access would not be given members of the press by Chairman Robinson.

Considerable indignation was shown by Carlisle people of prominence last evening at what looked like a star-chamber proceeding.

Secretary Keating averred that the commission had given no notice to anyone of its arrival or its intention to come; but his statement was hardly corroborated by appearances.

Contest Friday Night.

Friday evening proved highly enter-rice Stansbury were the captains, and Robert D. Bream and C. C. Bream the referees. The list of a thousand words was not used and many of the spellers were quickly floored. Prof. Reynolds was the last man up, his final opponent, J. R. McCullough, going down on "vigilance". In the game the score stood 21 to 20 in favor of Prof. Reynolds' side.

LIVELY ROW ON CANAL TOLLS

President's Views Not to Have Clear Sailing.

TROUBLE AHEAD IN HOUSE

Senator O'Gorman Will Lead Fight to Uphold Exemption of United States Ships.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Breakers are ahead for President Wilson's plan to have repealed at this session of congress that provision in the Panama canal act exempting American coastwise vessels from paying tolls.

While the president may force his views upon the house, there promises to be some rough navigation in the senate.

Senator O'Gorman, chairman of the inter-oceanic canal committee, who led the fight in the senate for the exemption of American ships, is determined to bring every influence to bear to overcome the president's wishes.
He will lead the fight on the floor of the senate and has offers of support from a large number of his colleagues.

The question which has agitated American relations with Great Britain for some time, altogether promises a lively row.

Senator O'Gorman vigorously declared that he did not relax his opposition and would do everything in his power to prevent the repeal of the clause. He said:

"I have unalterable convictions on the position the United States should maintain in this controversy. The senate's position on the tolls question was emphatically expressed in 1912 when the act was passed. Approval was given the exemption to American coastwise ships by a vote of 47 to 15, and I am of the opinion that many of the senators have not changed their convictions on the subject. I intend to oppose as vigorously as I am able the repeal of the tolls provision as I championed free tolls when the bill was before the senate."

Senators and representatives discussed the situation informally, but no move was made in the matter. Action probably will come first from the house interstate and foreign commerce committee in the form of a bill to repeal the toll exemption provision.

Representative Adamson, chairman of the committee, probably will introduce it next week. He is awaiting word from the president.

Although the repeal is proposed in the fact of a plank in the Baltimore platform of the Democratic party, the discussion of that phase of the proposed reversal of policy is not expected to be as extended as the influence of the contemplated action upon foreign relations.

FINDS WIFE DEAD

Ill Health Caused Mrs. Edna Budd
Smith to Shoot Herself.
Haddonfield, N. J., Feb. 7.—In a fit of mental aberration, brought about by recent ill health, Mrs. Edna Budd Smith, the thirty-two-year-old wife of Benjamin F. Smith, shot herself in the right temple at her home, 109 Potter street.

No one in the neighborhood heard the shot and her husband found her body when he came home. The door was locked and he had some difficulty in effecting an entrance to the house.
He called to his wife, and, receiving no answer, he went through the downstairs rooms and then to the rooms on the second and third floors.

In one of the rooms on the third floor he found his wife lying in a pool of blood. Doctors were summoned by telephone, but could do nothing for her, death resulting from the self-inflicted wound.

Rockefeller Leaves Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 7.—John D. Rockefeller left here yesterday for Tarry town, N. Y. Today is the last day allowed under the Ohio law for him to list his personal property for taxation as demanded by Ohio taxation officials. Whether this fact had anything to do with his departure could not be learned. Rockefeller had been in Cleveland all winter, refraining from his usual stay in Tarrytown, because of his sister-in-law's illness.

Split in Militant Suffragettes.

London, Feb. 7.—The third split in six years in the Women's Social and Political Union occurred when Sylvia Pankhurst broke away or was ejected from that organization. Hereafter Sylvia will run a separate show, which she will call the "East London Federation of Suffragettes," and will continue to drill and arm troops for her "people's army."

WILSON AXE FALLS ON POSTMASTERS

Democrats Displace a Number of Republicans.

Washington, Feb. 7.—The Wilsonian axe fell in the postoffice of numerous adjacent communities and other towns and cities in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, when the president sent to the senate the names of a number of Democrats to take the places of Republicans as postmasters.

The following appointments were sent to the senate for ratification by President Wilson:
Pennsylvania—John S. Roberts, Linwood; James R. Mowry, Derry; Rhamanthus W. Stocker, Honesdale; Harrison J. Kromer, Merion; Joseph S.
Cole, Millville; Thomas O. Murphy, Sharon Hill.

Quince, Sussex; Howard J. Tombleson, Williamstown.

In many of the communities the appointments mark the end of keen fights for postmasterships among prominent Democrats.

SIGN INJURES TWO AT DINNER

Man Forces Button From Vest That Cuts Friend's Eye and Own Cheek.
Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 7.—Finishing a hearty dinner, J. E. Jones, a rich real estate man, weighing 250 pounds, sighed contentedly and forced a button from his vest with such force that it split in fragments.

One of the pieces struck his friend, Christopher Smith, with whom he was dining, in the left eye and probably destroyed the sight. The other piece caught Smith on the cheek and opened up a deep wound, which it took three stitches to close.

Jones and Smith had just finished dining in a cafe when the accident happened. After the repast was finished they had settled themselves back for a smoke, when Jones heaved a deep sigh.

There was a snap, and before Mr.
Jones realized what had happened the blood was pouring from a wound under his companion's left eye, while the eye itself was tightly closed in pain.

2 CLAIM INVENTOR'S ESTATE

Mrs. May Palmer to Contest Claim of Baltimore Man's Wife.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 7.—That John H. Palmer, author and inventor, who died Jan. 28 last, left two alleged widows, was disclosed in the orphans' court here.

His will, executed Jan. 26, two days before his death and filed for probate in the orphans' court, bequeaths all his property to Mrs. Katharine Palmer, whom he calls his wife and whom he named as executrix without bond.

A notice of caveat was filed by a Philadelphia attorney, representing Mrs. May Palmer, who is alleged to have been the only legal wife of Mr.
Palmer. The attorney declared that his client, who lives in Philadelphia, was Palmer's wife, but that there was another woman in Baltimore who also claimed that relationship.

Palmer was married first in London, said the lawyer. That was in 1871. He and his wife came to this country several years ago. Palmer married again here, both women, he also said, being aware of the alleged claim of the other.

The estate of Palmer consists of his interests in certain inventions the value of which is not known.

SUSPECTED OF BEATING WILMINGTON BANK

New York Police Arrest Snp-posed Bad Check Artist.

Philadelphia, Feb. 7.—With the arrest in New York of a man who is said to have posed as Baron Von Gordon Seefeld, the police believe they have the man who swindled a bank in Wilmington, Del., out of $450, and who is wanted in Cleveland, O., and Rochester, N. Y., and possibly other cities.

The detectives say he is the man who swindled "Countess" Ika Kinsky Palmy, of New York, out of $2000 in 1906; who married the daughter of a wealthy southerner in New Orleans some time later, and who, both before and since then, has had a romantic career as a bogus check artist.

The swindler of the Wilmington bank posed as F. V. Stetson. It was under the name of "Mr. and Mrs. F.
V. Stetson, of Philadelphia," that the man under arrest had registered himself and a woman of prepossessing appearance, at a New York hotel, where the detectives found them. They were traced from Wilmington by means of their baggage and other descriptions furnished by the victims of the swindler.

F. Von Gordon Seefeld is the correct name of the man, according to the Pinkerton sleuths who followed him from Wilmington to New York.
They say his father was a German colonel, and that he was disowned many years ago. Since then, they say, he has operated under numerous other names.

COMMUTE SLAYER'S SENTENCE

Pardon Board's Action Stops Work
For Execution in Pottsville.

Pottsville, Pa., Feb. 7.—Sheriff Ditchey's preparations for the execution of John Shushinsky next Tuesday were stopped by the action of the board of pardons, which commuted the death sentence of the murderer to life imprisonment.

Shushinsky was convicted last May of the killing of Paul Yanalavage, of Shenandoah, while under the influence of liquor. Governor Tener sentenced him to die on Jan. 15, but a reprieve was granted.

Sheriff Ditchey had ordered the rope from a Philadelphia firm, making the trip to the city in person in order that the delivery would not be delayed.
The scaffold had been brought from its storage room at the prison and put into shape.

mittee. Increases in the bill by the

CASTILLO BANDITS HOLD AMERICANS

Great Cumbre Railroad Tunnel is in Ruins.

22 ARE SHOT TO DEATH

General Villa Orders His Troops to Execute Summarily All Mexican Maraders Captured.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 7.—Seven American railroad men are believed to be prisoners; the Great Cumbre railroad tunnel through the continental divide is in ruins, and the Mexican Northwestern passenger train, which left El Paso on Wednesday morning is a charred wreck at the mouth of the tunnel, as the result of the depredations of members of Maximo Castillo's gang of bandits.

The names of the prisoners reported in El Paso are: M. J. Gilmartin, superintendent of the road; H. Schoefield, superintendent of terminals at Juarez; Lee Williams, assistant manager of the railroad commissary; E.
J. McCutcheon, engineer of the passenger train; J. E. Webster, conductor, and H. F. Mardens, the express agent.

A seventh American is believed to have been on the train and Americans were employed on the freight train which was used to fire the tunnel, which is the largest on the road, being 3700 feet long.

Twenty-two of Castillo's bandits were captured by Constitutionalists and summarily executed at El Valle, near Casas Grandes.

Then Castillo wreaked one of the most dramatic revenges on record and escaped to the mountains. He ran ten cars of lumber into the tunnel, which carries the Mexico Northwestern railroad through the continental divide, and set fire to the train, the flames spreading to the woodwork of the tunnel.

The tunnel was ablaze that evening when the passenger train from Juarez was captured and sent headlong into the furnace, which was then belching flames and smoke from its mouth. Castillo then destroyed two neighboring bridges, one of them constructed of steel.

Castillo found two locomotives on a siding. The road here runs through lofty mountains and deep canyons.
The rails turn sharply through the hills and there are many high grades.
Down one of these Castillo sent the locomotives. Then momentum was terrific when they reached a sharp curve and left the track, shot over the embankment and fell a tangled mass of wreckage 1000 feet below.

General Villa was enraged at the news and in a telegram which passed through El Paso instructed General Felipe Macias, operating in the Casas Grandes district, to shoot every man who could not satisfactorily account for his presence there.

The bandits are believed to be operating in two forces of about thirty men each. The detachment, believed to be under Castillo himself, did the wrecking.

HUERTA FEARS MUTINY

Extraordinary Precautions Taken to Prevent Revolt in Mexico City.

Mexico City, Mex., Feb. 7.—Reports of an impending revolt among troops here have alarmed the Huerta government and led to extreme precautions being taken to prevent the Federal forces from being surprised.

General Blanquet's Twenty-ninth battalion, which is quartered at the National Palace, and of whose loyalty there is no question, were hurriedly transferred to the arsenal, which was used by the Felicistas as a fortress during the revolt of last February.

The plot, if there was one, was evidently nipped in the bud, for the night passed without any disturbance.

15 YORK POLICEMEN OUSTED

Mayor Lefean Accuses Commission of Playing Politics.

York, Pa., Feb. 7.—Fifteen policemen were ousted from office by city council.

A resolution ripping out the patrolmen was voted for by the four councilmembers elected as a non-partisan commission, all of whom, however, are Democrats, and was opposed by Mayor John R. Lefean.

No charges were filed against the discharged patrolmen. The action was denounced by Mayor Lefean, who charged his colleagues with playing politics and in acting in disregard of the public welfare.

ADELINA PATTI

The Queen of Singers

There was a time, and it is not entirely passed, when to mention prima donnas you would instantly think of Adelina Patti. She was born in Madrid, Spain, and her parents were operatic singers of Italian ancestry. She first sang at an early age in New York, but her fame was secure after her first appearance in London, and from that time she held high rank as one of the first singers of the day.

The rich bell-like quality of her voice and remarkable evenness of tone had a range as a high soprano never surpassed, and her cadenzas and trills were the delight of her admirers.
Equally at home in tragic tenderness of grand opera, or vivacity of comedy, or stateliness of oratorio, Adelina Patti will owe much of her fame to the way and manner in which she sang "Comin' Thro' the Rye" although her greatest success was "Margarite" in Gounod's "Faust". Year after year she continued to make farewell tours in America, and year after year she sang the sweet Scotch ballads with all the fervor of Latin blood. She lived in a castle in Wales in the mature years, where she delighted to sing for friends, and on special occasions for charity. The divine Patti never underestimated the value of the songs that touched the heart. "The Last Rose of Summer" is a song that will always be identified with Patti.

"Comin' Thro' the Rye" and "When to Thy Vision", from G

OLD TIME PORTRAITS.

Does There Exist a Reliable Painting of the Post Burns?

Was this the face that launched a thousand ships? And burnt the topless towers of Ilium? asks Marlowe, writing of the vision of golden Helen. A similar question has been asked in regard to the diverging portraits of Mary Stuart. Was this the face that turned so many heads some 350 years ago? The queen of Scots was assuredly bewitching. Knox admits it; Knollys asserts it; Ruthven lost his heart to her in Lochleven castle; whoever saw her desired her. Yet not one of Mary's portraits represents her as beautiful. Romney has sufficiently explained the fascination of Lady Hamilton for Nelson. But Mary Stuart's charm remains unexplained by her portraits.

And what about Burns? The point I wish to make is that old portrait painters are not to be depended on for strict fidelity to their originals. The mere fact that they differ so much in their representations of the same subject is enough to prove it. In regard to Burns, the question bears a twofold aspect. Not only do the portraits of the poet disagree with one another, but even that which by its frequent reproduction has tacitly been accepted as the truest representation cannot have been exactly like him when it was done. I refer, of course, to the familiar Nasmyth head and bust, painted in 1787, when Burns was carrying all before him on his first visit to Edinburgh.—J. Cuthbert Hadden in Scribner's.

Candles to Fit.

To make a candle fit any candlestick, soften the wax by dipping in hot water. Then push it in the candlestick; if too small, the candle can be squeezed in; if too large, the soft wax will spread and hold the candle up.

Its Fixtures Unusually Ornate.

"This bar," said the proud dispenser, "has a solid mahogany top." "Yes," remarked Noyes E. Brewmore, sizing up the negro porter and the man behind the bar, "and you also have some solid ebony and solid ivory fixtures."

Screening Land from Sandstorms.
The agricultural department of the Belgium government is preparing to undertake one of the most extensive schemes for tree planting ever attempted. The line of sand dunes that reaches along almost the entire seaboard, from Ostend to the Dutch frontier, will be covered with trees, which will at the same time stop the drifting of the sand and act as a protection to the fertile land behind the proposed tree belt.

NECK FRILLS CONTINUE POPULAR—HIGH AND FULL IN THE BACK

The low collar is youthful and becoming to nearly every one; however the woman with the long slender throat and even her well rounded sister favors the upstanding, fluffy frill that gives such a softening effect to the face. These have been mostly of white or cream colored chiffon or net but the newest idea from Paris is to have your neck and sleeve frill match your gown or suit. This idea was carried out very attractively in a navy blue suit; the frills were of chiffon in a slightly lighter shade of blue, edged with a narrow line of dull gold. It was most pleasing in effect.

Another idea which has "caught on" is the blouse or coat of a rather vivid color worn with a dark velveteen skirt.

Number 8121 is an attractive example of this. The blouse is of Chantrelle crepe de Chine worn with a skirt of duvetyn in a dark harmonizing green.

But the great syndicate of papers in the United States and Canada, now distributing this remarkable treasury of Song have made it possible for every family to own a copy. Ordinary methods of book-selling could not accomplish this. It is in fact, not book-selling, but book-distributing for millions of new, paper readers. SUWANEER RIVER

As sung by Christine Nilsson

The first popularity of "Suwaneer River" dates back to the time when Christine Nilsson, the fair haired daughter of a farmer near Wexio, Sweden, surprised all who heard her with the sweetness and compass of her voice as she sang Foster's plaintive melody. She was an accomplished player on the flute and violin and made her debut at the early age of seventeen at Stockholm. Like many of the famous prima donnas, she was chosen for her appearance was "Traviata." She made a concert tour of the United States and sang many years in Italian opera. At her farewell concert given in London her voice was exquisite in its purity and sweetness and evenness of tone, having a compass of three octaves, an exceptional range. In America she will be known and long ten embored for her singing of "Suwaneer River" in the height of her success as an operatic triumph. She was the acknowledged incomparable artist of her time. This beautiful song and many others sang by Nilsson, are to be found in "Heart Songs" now offered by this paper to its readers, who will find the terms given in the coupon published on another page of to-day's issue.

FARM ORCHARD AND GARDEN BY F. E. TRIGG REGISTER ROCKFORD, ILL. CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED

The world's production of wheat is at present about 4,000,000,000 bushels annually. This country produces about one-fifth of this total.

Fowls that die of cholera should either be buried deep or burned. In any event they should be kept at a distance from other fowls and farm animals, for their presence simply invites a further spread of the disease.

It is no reflection on the quality of silage when the juice that collects at or leaks from its base smells like the busy end of a brewery. It simply means that a necessary process of fermentation has gone on within.

Venetian red stirred into the drinking water of fowls among which so called winter cholera has appeared seems to give quick relief. The amount used is half a pint to a gallon of water.

The mild weather and the almost entire absence of snow from large areas of the corn belt have simplified greatly the work of caring for stock cattle and have reduced the cost of their bill of fare from 30 to 40 per cent where they have had the range of stalk fields.

Where it is not necessary to confine them the Leghorns make a very satisfactory fowl, as they are the best of layers and range far in search of insect food. The one drawback with them is that they don't weigh out when they are delivered to the poultry buyer.

As the cold weather increases the need is the greater for seeing that the flock of laying hens get considerable exercise. The natural tendency with them, as with folks, is to be sluggish during cold weather, and this tendency should be counteracted in the manner suggested.

Spilled silage makes a fairly good humus addition to the soil if not spread too thick, but not a bit of it should be fed to stock with the idea that there is any economy in it. The harmful effect of the moldy silage more than offsets any food value which it may contain.

It is suggested that if our great-grandfathers should return to life they would be well lost in the midst of the many mechanical devices in use on the average farm for saving labor, but that our great-grandmothers would feel quite at home in the average farm kitchen, where they could drudge away to their heart's content.

Just because a cow gives a lot of milk it is not conclusive evidence that she is the best money maker in the herd. Her milk should be tested for per cent of butter fat before she can be classified. If her milk is thinner than that of her stall mates and she is at the same time a heavy feeder she is not likely to be the most profitable cow by a long ways.

The following recipe is an old one that is recommended as excellent for coating plows, plow shovels and other tools that are likely to gather rust during the winter. Melt together one pound of lard and a lump of fresh rosin as large as a walnut after it has been reduced to a powder. The mixture should be stirred thoroughly and applied to the tools with an old brush.

Many a cattle feeder loses a good deal of money in the long run because he scrumps the ration given his feeding steers prior to the time that they are two years old. If they are to give the best returns when marketed they must be fed in such a way during the interval mentioned as to give them large and bony frames on which the fat can be laid during the final heavy feeding.

An interesting illustration of the value of water storage is noted in the large crops secured in the Nile valley the past year in spite of the fact that the overflow of the river was the lowest recorded in years. The great Assuan dam held in check the surplus water of the overflows of previous years and made it possible to furnish the amount of moisture required for crop production.

Much as one may like to dodge it, the fact remains that the most profitable gains in the raising of stock are closely connected with the comfort and physical well-being of such animals during the period in which they are fed and cared for. Four quarters that are both damp and insanitary cause the feeder a good deal more in the end than would be represented in the cost of keeping sheds and stables clean and liberally supplied with dry bedding.

Fine Distinction.

The fine distinction in the animal kingdom is that the biggest hog gets killed, while the human article goes on and on forever.

LIKED BIG BANKNOTES.

An English Lord Who Had a Curious Mania For Hoarding.

A curious story of hoarding is told in Ralph Neville's book of gossip:

A former Lord Dysart who lived more or less an invalid's life in a house on the outskirts of London, carefully watched over by a lady who acted as a sort of companion-nurse, one day asked her to go to town and get a check cashed for him at the Bank of England. When she was ready to start the old peer sat down at his writing table and, having written out a check for £100,000, told her to be sure and see that she got the note for the whole amount. * * * When she reached the bank the cashier communicated with the manager, who asked the nurse to step into his private office. Having satisfied himself as to her authority for making such a request, he said that if she did not object he would much rather send a clerk to accompany her with the note. She gladly assented to this arrangement, and in due course the clerk in person handed the £100,000 banknote to Lord Dysart.

After having done so he told the peer that there were only three such notes in existence. "One," he said, "we have at the bank, another I have just handed to your lordship and the third, which some time ago disappeared from circulation, we have never been able to trace."

"Perhaps I can help you," said Lord Dysart, and, hobbling over very well that he was, he unlocked a drawer and took out the missing £100,000 banknote, which had been lying there for many years.

WATER IN COAL MINES.

Pumping It Out Costs a Big Pile of Money Every Year.

It costs quite a bit of money to pump 1,000,000,000 tons of water out of the anthracite mines of Pennsylvania every year, but it must be done or there could be no mines. In times past, collieries were abandoned because of inability to cope with the water flowing into them, but more and more pumps, some of them costing $300,000 and $400,000 each, have been installed, and the enormous amount of work they do is all that enables the operators to keep open the mines.

The calculation as to the amount of water handled in this way is simple. The output of the mines is a little less than 70,000,000 tons a year. The average amount of water pumped is about fifteen tons for every ton of coal produced. The cost of this is one of the most important elements in the increased cost of mining. As the richer and more accessible veins have been exhausted, shafts have been sunk deeper and the volume of water to be pumped has increased rapidly.

The pipes, of which there are thousands of miles in the mines, wear out quickly because the sulphur in the mine water eats into the iron like an acid. This destructive quality prohibits the use of the water in the boilers that generate steam at the collieries, and the result is that, when there is a drought, the companies often are obliged to haul water to the mines in tank cars from many miles away.—New York Post.

Odd Contrasts in Climate.

New York is usually thought of as being directly west from London, but is, however, despite its far more rigorous climate, 900 miles nearer the equator than is the British capital. The black coast of Labrador is directly west of London. The same line passes the southern part of Hudson bay and Lake Winnipeg. On the other side of the continent it touches the southern extremity of Alaska and continues through the center of the isthmus of Kamchatka and Siberia and Russia to Houburg.

Another illustration of the unexpected in contrasts is found in a comparison of St. John's, Newfoundland, with Paris. Paris has a winter of comparative mildness, while St. John's is a region of bitter cold and fogs, with drifting icebergs along its coast. Yet St. John's is 100 miles nearer the equator.

Anatole France on Journalism.

M. Anatole France, in reply to a toast of his health, said: "I have been a journalist and am one still. I owe to journalism some of the qualities that you have exaggerated. Journalism taught me a great part of the art of writing. The two things most useful in writing are ease and simplicity. Journalism teaches those things so well that the style even of great writers like Chateaubriand gained from journalistic experience."—London Times.

New York's Sewage.

Every day there is poured into the Harlem river 90,000,000 gallons of sewage; into the North river, 132,000,000 gallons; into the East river, 234,000,000 gallons. So in the course of a year New York City pollutes its harbor with about 495,000,000 gallons of refuse matter.—New York World.

Judicious Charity.

"I don't believe he is so miserably as they say. I hear he invites his poor relations to visit him each year."

"Yes. They all live at a considerable distance and are too poor to come."

The Reason He Jokes. When a man jokes about his wife being jealous you may depend upon it his wife has not a jealous bone in her body. Men with jealous wives do not joke about it.—Johnson Globe.

Signs of Health.

"Every healthy girl is born to look into shop windows, to laugh a little, to flirt a little, and to gleat over new clothes."—Warwick Deeping.

Forestalled

By JOHN G. LARNED

During the reigns of Louis XIII., XIV. and XV. of France dueling was so prevalent that at one time it began to appear that all the bravest men in France would be killed. While Louis XV. was on the throne a young graduate of the College of New Jersey went abroad for the purpose of finishing his education by the study of dueling.

Paris in those days was a favorite resort for the few colonists of North America who ventured to cross the Atlantic, and young Mathewson made quite a sojourn there. The principal reason for his doing so was Mlle. Hortense de Boyer, a dashing girl, who was setting the young bloods of the capital wild. She was considered the most graceful dancer and the best horsewoman in Paris and had so far practiced the art of self defense as to stand well as a handler of the foil.

One evening after a ball, at which Mathewson had paid marked attention to Mlle. de Boyer, he was addressed by a young army officer as follows:

"I am the bearer of a challenge to you from Count Gaston Vandeleis, you having during the evening danced against him in the dance."

Mathewson knew very well that the charge was but a pretext for the challenge and concerned himself only about the latter. Moreover, he knew that he must either accept it or leave Paris, followed by the contempt of all who had favored him by their good will. He suspected that the true reason for being called out was that he had paid marked attention to Mlle. de Boyer. He replied by referring the officer to a friend, then went to his apartments. The friend joined him soon after, and upon consultation it was determined to put off the meeting so long as possible in order that the American might prepare himself by practice, for he had no skill whatever with any weapon. The best, however, that could be done was to defer the encounter for ten days. Then Mathewson began to practice shooting with a pistol.

The next evening after the ball while Count Vandeleis was dining at the cafe where he was used to taking his dinner a lady handsomely dressed, but wearing a veil that she did not raise, entered the place and took a seat near him. No lady was in those days even seen to enter a cafe unattended by an escort, and the veiled woman at once arrested the attention of every one present. Presently she spoke in an indignant tone to Vandeleis, accusing him of starting her, throwing a card on his table beneath the name of Albert du Plessis and left the cafe. Vandeleis, astonished, picked up the card, supposing it to bear the name of the lady's husband. Since its being given him was tantamount to a challenge, he waited for a friend of the gentleman to appear. Presently a man entered and said that he represented Du Plessis and made arrangements for the duel to take place the next morning at sunrise.

Vandeleis now had two duels on his hands, and successive mornings. This did not trouble him, for not a year had passed that he fought fewer than half a dozen duels and did not like fighting. He husband of a woman on a voyage, thinking he had stated her, and he was not satisfied as to the status of the woman herself, since she had been in a public cafe unattended. He belonged to the court circle and to fight any one except a gentleman would detract from his social standing. He endeavored to discover who was M. du Plessis, but found no one who had ever heard of him. However, thinking to suffer less by fighting a man of the people than by declining to fight, he concluded, so long as the affair would not interfere with his meeting with Mathewson, to let it proceed.

He was on the ground the next morning waiting for M. du Plessis, who had not arrived, when a carriage drove up and out stepped a lady attended by a maid. She drew aside her veil and revealed the features of Mlle. de Boyer. Vandeleis was thunderstruck.

"How long, M. le Count," she said, "since you constituted yourself my guardian, with the right to say who shall and who shall not pay me attention?"

"Hortense, what do you mean by such words?"

"I mean that I have heard that you, whose brains are in your thumbs, have, under pretext, challenged a man whose brains are in his head because he danced with me several times at a recent ball. I propose that you shall first settle with me for accepting his invitations, after which you may settle with him for giving them."

Throwing off a long cloak, she revealed a fencing costume. Vandeleis did all in his power to avoid fighting a woman and succeeded only by pleading himself to withdraw his challenge to Mathewson, admitting the true reason for having given it, with an abject apology.

Mathewson was in a shooting gallery when he received the count's withdrawal. He endeavored to discover the reason for it, and was told that Mlle. de Boyer had asked him to fight. When Mathewson heard of this, he would have taken Mlle. de Boyer with him as his wife, but she was related to the royal family, and to marry a commoner and go to the American wilderness was not to be thought of for a moment.

COUPLE SLAIN IN MOTOR CAR

Man With Two Sweethearts Kills One and Himself.

TRAGEDY ON LONELY ROAD

Chauffeur in Letter to Other Girl Says He Can't Love Two and Tells of Death Ride.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 7.—In a lonely section of country between Ligonier and Ligonier, the bodies of Anna Lutz, sixteen years old, and John McFadden, aged twenty, both of Greensburg, were found in an automobile.

The girl had been shot twice in the left temple and McFadden was shot in the right temple. The motor of the car was still running when the bodies were found.

Mystery shrouded the tragedy until a letter from McFadden to another girl was found, showing that he was infatuated with both and had evidently promised to marry one of them. So he cut love's gordian knot by killing one of his sweethearts and himself.

"In in Latrobe and going over the mountains, You'll never see me again," was the message which McFadden telephoned to his employer, Elmer Turner, manager of the Standard Garage, after he had been shot. Turner sent out other employees to find the chauffeur.

McFadden was employed by the garage and had the privilege of using the cars. He took a new car and drove to the Lutz home, where he met Anna, and took her for a ride. McFadden drove the car at a high rate of speed to Latrobe, where he called up his employer on the telephone.

Turner said that he thought McFadden intended stealing the car and he immediately sent out two other employees, John and Victor Hayden, in a high-powered machine and told them to stay on the state road and overtake McFadden.

On reaching Latrobe the pursuers were told that the machine containing Miss Lutz and McFadden had passed through that city at the rate of forty miles an hour.

They overtook the machine standing on top of a knoll, to the right of the road, with the engine still going. Both Miss Lutz and McFadden were sitting upright in the front seat of the machine.

Miss Lutz had been shot twice in the left temple and had evidently died instantly. There had apparently been no struggle, and it is thought that McFadden shot the girl without her suspecting what he was going to do. He then fired a bullet into his own right temple. The revolver was found lying between the young couple, with three empty chambers. Another revolver, loaded, was found in McFadden's coat pocket.

A note was found in one of McFadden's pockets which read: "If you want to know the reason why for our troubles, ask, and write to —, who lives in Uniontown." The name of a young woman had been written, but the coroner refused to make her name public. The coroner left for Uniontown.

McFadden wrote a letter to the girl in Uniontown. This letter contained the evident motive for the murder and suicide.

"Dearest Bertha—I can't love two girls, but I loved you as well as the next one. I guess when you see me next time I will be a dead one. I don't have money to get married now. I'm going out tonight and take my friend for a ride. She loves me and I love her, so I am going to die. If she loves me, she is going to die with me; it will be a ride to death in a new car."

"JOHN."

The slain girl had been in the fresh man class of the Greensburg high school.

IDLE TO STORM WASHINGTON

800 Men and 100 Women of California Will Demand "Chance" From U. S. San Francisco, Feb. 7.—Nine companies of 100 persons each—eight of men and one of women—have been organized from among the unemployed, and said they would start next week for Washington, where a demonstration of the nation's unemployed is planned for next May.

Charles Kelley, organizer, says the men and women will assemble in the national capital to demand "money, machinery and land from the government so that they can work out their own salvation."

Miss Pearl Vogel is organizing the women for the trip.

MRS. HARTJE WEDS BOY

Divorced Wife of Millionaire Marries Her Son's Chum.

Pasadena, Cal., Feb. 7.—Stanley Howard, twenty years old, of New York, and Mrs. Scott Hartje, forty years old, who divorced her husband, Augustus Hartje, the Pittsburgh millionaire, were married here ten days ago.

This became known following the receipt of dispatches from New York stating that the couple intended to wed.

Mrs. Hartje secured her divorce after one of the most sensational trials in the history of the divorce courts in this country. Stanley Howard and Mrs. Hartje's son were classmates at college and Howard was introduced to Mrs. Hartje by her son.

Mrs. Hartje is wealthy, having received a liberal allowance at the time of her divorce. Besides her son, Scott, she has a daughter, Mary Louise. She had three other children, all of whom died young.

KILLS HER HUSBAND TO SAVE HIS SOUL

The Fear of Losing His Love Prompted Shooting.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 7.—Because she feared her husband's love for her was waning, Mrs. Oliver Weigle, of McKeesport, shot him as he lay sleeping in his bed "to save his soul."

Mrs. Weigle confessed to the police that she was guilty of murder after Coroner Samuel Jamison, of Allegheny county, has returned a verdict of suicide.

"I killed him because I feared I was going to lose his love," sobbed Mrs. Weigle. "I wanted to save his soul. I loved 'Ollie' with all my heart and when I thought of him leaving me it drove me mad."

"On Wednesday night we had a quarrel. It was not serious, but it filled me with the fear that my husband had ceased to care for me. As I tossed in the darkness that night I decided to kill my husband."

"Just before dawn I got up and went to the bureau drawer where Oliver kept his revolver. My husband was sleeping when I tiptoed to his bed. I pressed the muzzle of the revolver to his forehead and pulled the trigger. The noise aroused others in the house and they came running in."

"The weapon had dropped to the bed, and as the door opened I threw myself upon the bloody coverings and screamed. I told them that 'Ollie' had killed himself because of our quarrel, and they believed me."

"The thoughts of what I had done haunted me, so I have confessed." Mrs. Weigle almost collapsed several times during her story, and the tragic tale was interrupted by violent outbreaks of sobbing.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 7.—Miss Grace Qualde, twenty-three years old, who shot her sweetheart, J. G. Alder, and then herself, because Alder told her he was going to marry another girl, died. Her last words before she lapsed into unconsciousness were:

"I'm glad I did it. I had nothing to live for. I pleaded with him to marry me in spite of his parents' objection. Then he told me he was in love with another girl. I then shot him, and then myself."

Alder will live, physicians say.

Arendtsville, Pa.

A SMART FROCK OF SERGE SHOULD HAVE A PLACE IN EVERY WARDROBE

There is nothing more satisfactory, especially at this time of the year and a little later, than a plain dress of serge, ratine or other dark, durable material. By way of trimming, a bit of contrasting material, a few colored buttons or a frill of net or chiffon is all that is needed.

In No. 7628 a dull blue hard finish serge is smartly relieved by trimming bands of dark green cotton duvetyne. This cotton duvetyne is a velvet looking fabric, somewhat higher priced than most cottons, but rich appearing, and one gets the impression that it will wear very well.

To copy this dress in size 36 it requires 5 1/2 yards of 36 inch serge or other fabric. Serge may be purchased in good quality from 75 cents to $1.50 a yard.

In 7628 silk poplin makes up very effectively, charmingly relieved by a high Medici collar of white organdy. The color is an olive green bordering on the yellow. A feature of this frock is the collar; the wired Medici effect in back extends into a broad, softly draped fichu in front, which is graceful and becoming.

This design may be copied in size 36 with 4 1/2 yards of 36 inch material. Silk poplin may be purchased from 75 cents up.

No. 7628—sizes 34 to 42.
No. 7628—sizes 34 to 42.
Each pattern 15 cents.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.
